ENTERPRISE RELEASES SUMMER PLANS

Most beginning courses and a few second-year courses will be offered at Enterprise State Junior College during the summer quarter opening June 16, President B. A. Forrester said. Forrester said evening classes would be discontinued for the summer. However, high school honor students taking college courses for deferred credit are expected to swell enrollment in daytime classes.

The high school honors program, Forrester explained, is designed for the student who has completed the sophomore or junior year of high school with outstanding grades. To qualify, the applicant must be approved by the principal of his high school and the superintendent of his school district. He may enroll for beginning college courses along with the regular admitted ESJC freshmen. Credits he earns in the summer remain "provisional" until he has completed high school and been enrolled as a full-time student at the junior college for one quarter.

By participating in the honors program for two summers, Forrester said, a good student can earn as many as 20 hours toward a degree.

Deadline for application for the honors program or regular enrollment is June 5. Summer registration begins June 12.

Forrester said 10 of the 35 full-time instructors would remain on duty this summer, along with the second award of the Good Conduct Medal April 24.

Jus' Ramblin'
BY LUCILE K. WOODHAM MCRAE

MACK AND I spend about half our time, when at home, bird watching. Right now a mockingbird chases our tom cat, Charlie. That mockingbird does nothing but watch that cat and apparently the cat spends all his time tormenting the mockingbird. Saturday, Mack put Charlie's food on the back step and that mockingbird chased him away, and we had to move his food to a spot where he couldn't be seen. I saw the mockingbird chase him all over the back yard during his back last week. Eventually he gave up the fight and went into the house. I was hanging the laundry on the line, Charlie went with me and sat under a lawn chair but that bird knew he was under there and kept diving down after him, daring him to come out from under that chair. It is constant war between the two all day long every day. When possible, Charlie ignores that mockingbird but it is seldom he gets by with it.

And then we thoroughly enjoy watching the birds come to the wide pan we have on top of a pole just outside our breakfast room window. Even the mockingbirds are coming there now to feed, eating the sunflower seed, chopped corn and I even put some shredded corn in their pan Saturday but they ignored it. I found an old bar-becue outfit on a stand and I rolled it to the back and filled it with water for the birds but they still come to the pan we have in the back yard for the cat and dog's water. There is one large bird that we do not really recognize but that looks very much like a black bird that takes a bath in that pan every day and of all the splashing you have ever seen it does. Other birds also take the liberty of taking a bath in that pan. All without Charlie and Yoda having a meal of them. We enjoy the quiet at the far back of the house and they will feed right on up to the house. We had tossed out some rancid pecans left over from last year and the birds and squirrels are having themselves a whole lot of a time with them. Saturday, Gary and I moved the six acres back of the house and the birds could hardly wait until we got away from certain spots to drop down and start hunting bugs and worms where the grass had just been cut. One beautiful red head looking like he was dressed up for a special occasion was one of the busiest of them all. That bright red head, black back and white front looked like he was formally dressed for a party. And of course we have a few sparrows and blue-jays. The blue-jays are beautiful but I can't like them because they destroy the nests of other birds. And we have Martins that fly around catching up all the flying insects on the place and we have a nest of worms. All this time the squirrels are busy with their chores and also fussing with our cat, Charlie, who apparently doesn't know they are anywhere around.

So can you wonder that the talk at the newspaper office have trouble with me getting my work done.

SOMETIMES THIS equipment that is necessary for the putting together of this newspaper gets tangled up and a service man is required. That happened to one of the Headliners sometime ago but when it happened to the second one that was it serious so we loaded them both up last Thursday morning and headed for Montgomery and the service man to make the repairs. After reaching his place the repairs were completed in a short time so that gave us time to do something else while in the big city so we went to the state capital to visit the legislature while in session. But when we got there they had adjourned and most of the members had left for home. But in the hall we met up with the Covington delegation, Representatives Crum, Foshee and Frank Jackson. Soon Dr. Ralph Adams, president of Troy University, came up and we saw Senator Al Turner. So even though most of the Senators and Representatives had gone home apparently Covington's representatives and senator were still on the job and when we left about an hour later they still had some work to finish before they would be going home. All were very nice to us and we made it feel that we were welcomed. We had invitations to visit them during the time they are in session but that to me is like attending a baseball game - it looks like they're not accomplishing much but they are just sitting there. That is what a session of the legislature is to me - a lot of me sitting there. But what is what it takes to accomplish those bills they pass - mostly raising our taxes, it seems. At any rate that is the thing they do we don't forget.

But Crum, Foshee and Frank Jackson seemed to be veterans at the job and that night on the news report I learned that they had introduced a bill to make illegal - they threw the ball four on a party telephone line. I know a lot of folk that is going to be mighty happy if they get that bill passed. Imagine being on a party line with ten families and most of them having teen-agers to contend with. And if you wonder what they talk about I can tell you they don't - they just keep the line tied up and no one else can talk either. You should hear a teen-ager talking to another teen-ager - they just grunt every now and then and occasionally murmur something that is not even in the English language. But then I guess they have a language all their own - something like "an unknown tongue."

So I'm hoping Crum and Frank get that telephone bill through that makes it illegal to have more than four homes to a party line. Actually there shouldn't be more than two on each line. While at it suppose we limit them to "two" homes on a line.

WHILE IN Montgomery Thursday we visited my father at Troy. Monday, He wasn't feeling so good that day, he said. He was surprised to see us sure we visit him in on a Sunday. One of the children visit him every week and some times during the time he is visited by several of the children during a week when in Montgomery for business reasons, etc. He really appreciates his visitors and most of the time he has many visitors during the week. So any time any of you are in Montgomery at all possible go by and visit him. He would appreciate it and so would I.

ANOTHER STORY of interest in Sunday's Pensacola Journal was the one about Tatum Bedsole and his museum at his home in Har-ola. The Sunday paper featured the Lockhart Koppers Company which the writer stated is the last tired kiln in the United States. The Pensacola newspaper has featured a number of interesting activities of this area including Lake Jackson and Morton Heeves' maps and history of the area, Pinks Mill, one of the largest water mills left and several other items of interest in the area.

Few of us know about the museum that Tatum Bedsole sponsors. He and Mrs. Bedsole began the museum many years ago as a hobby. They have an old log cabin, an exact reproduction of those of early settlers. The log cabin is built entirely of pioneering days materials. Bedsole said they built the cabin to enjoy Sunday pictures away from the big house but that most of their visitors enjoy it as a relic from the past. Quoting from the article: "Bedsole estimates more than 3,000 persons have been taken on the museum tour he conducts and narrates personally, during the past 10 years. The collection has always been added to, and Bedsole can relate each one to the owner and to some particular point of history in the South, Alabama and the United States."

Bedsole has many items from pioneer days, Indian lore and historical materials in the cabin. He estimates that his material would be very high on the market but he does not estimate them in dollars and cents. He has a tomahawk estimated by geologists as being more than 2,000 years old, and has an Indian canoe, hewn from a log, that dates back more than 100 years. He has Indian arrowheads, an old pistol, powder horn and sling, lanterns, and many other artifacts. He has a covered wagon under a sheltered roof, complete with all the trappings. The wagon and all equipment are all nearly 100 years old.

Bedsole says, according to the Pensacola Journal article, "it may not be much to many people, but it is a pleasure to me and I'm sure it is of interest to some."

Mr. Bedsole may not realize it but his collection is of much interest to many. I visited his place many years ago and have planned to make a visit to enjoy his collection again. I hope to do so very soon. During the years he has on the rural route I knew he would not be there to explain the historical part of his collection to me and for some reason there has always been reason for not getting there on Sundays. Now that he is retired from postal services I am hoping that I can visit his place and enjoy living the past with his interesting collections of the past.

MEERLE HAD camera trouble last week and ended up with-out pictures of the Wildcat Band picnic. But that is just one of the things that can happen with photography. For a number of years I did wedding pictures and I had to give it up because I would get so nervous as to if the pictures would turn out to be good. That is something you can't go back and take later if you have problems and I would be a nervous wreck after every wedding. But I quit that business. Life is too short to torment yourself in any such way.

Most pictures, like those of the band picnic, is not a calamity if you fail, because it is not essential anyway, but even that can make you sick when you fail to get good pictures. And there's so-called "hood-proofs" cameras is just hog-wash. There isn't such a thing.

A pound of cotton can be spun into 70 yards of cloth.

MEMORIAL POPPY - Traditionally identified with the American Legion Auxiliary's Poppy Day program, this memorial flower in one-rodium metal size is welcomed by many publications. It is the "trade mark" of the observance and underscores the importance of the Poppy Day program.

WE the family of the late Mrs. Ella Mae Carter, wishes to express our appreciation to all friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness in our time of grief.

Governor Albert Brewer is leaving the impression with many, including this writer, that he is determined to run the State of Alabama on a business basis - and I applaud this effort. If you have ever taken more than a passing interest in the workings of the State Legislature, you know that bills are assigned in a method that is other than business-like. Often the bill is assigned to a committee that never meets, even though it does not even apply to the subject that committee is set up to study. Often bills are assigned to a committee that will surely approve it and fast. This has been happening for many years and we all accept it as a fact of life, but if all bills could be handled with the same precision and limits set on the time a bill could stay in committee, with the committee only recommending passage or not passage and assigning money bills to the money committee and highway bills and ONLY highway bills to the highway committee, etc. I feel sure the people of Alabama would gain. It would not take the legislators long to learn to operate with this as they do with the present system and much more could be accomplished in less time.

The Elba City Council found out last week just how hard their job can be at times. They had a petition for rezoning a blighted area to allow a business to be constructed. They also had surrounding residents who did not want their area rezoned. This put the council in the position of "judge." They had to judge between progress of local business and peace of mind for homeowners with friends on both sides. It was evident that none of the council members cherished this position but each knew that a vote must be taken. I am glad that it was not me that had to say "yes" or "no" on that proposal, because like the councilmen, I had friends on both sides and it would have hurt me more than those on the other side if I had had to cast a vote. That is like Mother used to say as she got out the fly swatter, "This hurts me more than it does you," yet she could never agree to my obvious solution of just not doing it.

The local Masonic Order owns the upstairs part of the city hall building and there has been talk lately of them selling it to the City. In my opinion, if the City and the Masons both wish to sell to someone else and each one build a new, more adequate building, that is fine. But, I do not see where the City of Elba needs the additional space or at least upstairs space. Tax money is not plentiful enough to warrant buying it for speculation nor does the city need to go into the speculation business. Therefore, I hope that something else can be worked out to give the Masons the new home they want and improve the City facilities without spending a whole heap of our tax money (that they ain't got yet).

I watched some beauty pageant on television last week and as this pretty blonde came out representing Colorado and they announced that she was from Colorado Springs, I caught myself wondering how I missed her when I was stationed at nearby Ft. Carson, Colorado. When they mentioned her age, I subtracted the thirteen years since I was there and realized that she was only ten years old. I still consider myself a growing boy but get a little flustered when this type thing happens.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

Order my steps in thy word. —(Psalms 119:133).

We may question not only how to bring order into our minds, our affairs, our lives, but where to begin. It has been said that we always have to work from center to circumference. So the outer order we long for must have its beginning within us. Let the Christ in us give us the necessary direction. Then take a step to make the idea of divine order a reality in our affairs and in our lives.

Washington Report

by GEORGE ANDREWS
Member of Congress
Third District of Ala.

If the Justice Department does nothing else right, it has made at least one great contribution to this nation in hastening the departure of Abe Fortas from the Supreme Court. However, the matter is certainly not closed, and the Attorney General should reject arguments that will undoubtedly be made that the Court and Mr. Fortas have suffered enough. We must not return to the impotent and indecisive policies of former Attorney General Ramsey Clark.

Justice Fortas may not have been the only member of the High Court with questionable ties and business interests. Certainly a curious link exists between the Albert Parvin Foundation, which pays Justice William O. Douglas $12,000 a year to date about the globe on matters unrelated to his court duties, and Fortas' old law firm, Arnold and Porter, who represented the now notorious Louis Wolfson. Wolfson was convicted of obstructing a government investigation into stock manipulations in his construction firm, Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corporation. Although Parvin was not a defendant, the government had charged that Wolfson and Parvin were conspirators in this obstruction.

Additionally, Mrs. Fortas, still an active member of the law firm, was retained in 1966 to evaluate the Foundation's tax-exempt status.

In 1960, I asked for an investigation into the moral character of Douglas, after he took his fourth young bride, leaving behind a string of divorces in which his wives charged him with cruelty and "personal indignities."

In case that did not give some indication of his character, the subsequent revelation of his $12,000 annual salary from the Parvin Foundation certainly spotlighted his brand of ethics.

Justice Douglas' indiscretions were shrugged off by Chief Justice Earl Warren at that time, and doubtless Justice Fortas' actions would have been likewise ignored, had they not been so vigorously attacked by all.

Actually, the indiscretions and conflicts of interest by members of the Warren Court seem minor compared to the unspeakable damage they have done to the nation through their distortion of the Constitution. Public confidence in the Court will not be restored until the justices now sitting are removed and replaced with men who will adhere to the Constitution as it is — not as they want it to be.

Yet, while they remain, they must be above suspicion, and events have be required to report publicly all fees or compensation received from any source other than the United States. They should also be promptly removed from office if they participate in cases in which they are personally involved.

I would like to see the Supreme Court's life-time status removed. This nation has been so mercilessly plagued by these nine men that the very future of representative government is in doubt. They should be held accountable periodically to someone. All America knows that they have plenty to account for.

As a start, they should to criminal activity on our college campuses threaten the future of these institutions, and today's high schoolers will be the real losers if higher education is destroyed. Some of them are indignant about it, and rightly so.

Twenty-seven students from the Frontier Room of Baileyville (W. Va.) Junior High School really laid it on the line in a recent letter to the President and Members of Congress. They said:

"As members of an experimental class in junior high school, we have become disturbed as we try to analyze the trends of the times, and try to visualize what our college life will be like four short years from now, if they are any colleges by that time. It is sickening and perplexing. In free America, to witness communist-inspired, foul-mouthed, SDS dissidents taking over our educational institutions. It is strange, indeed, that pistol — packin' stone — throwing, knife-wielding, chanting misfits can disrupt so many institutions and so few seem concerned. Where are our red-blooded Americans?"

Wish I'd Said THAT

A Communist is a pig who wants to use your pot to cook your goose in it — Louis Graves, The Nashville (Ark.) News.

Accident Fatal To Fisherman

The Conservation Department's Water Safety Division reported Monday that a 33-year-old Fort Deposit man was presumed drowned when he was thrown from a boat into turbulent Alabama River waters below Miller's Ferry Dam northwest of Camden.

Water safety officials said the victim, Coleman Goodwin, and his fishing companion Mark Simmons of Fort Deposit, were thrown from their 17-foot boat when it drifted into turbulent waters created by eight open floodgates.

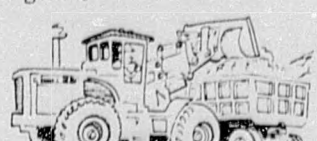

The boat capsized, throwing both men into the rough water.

Rescue units from Marengo, Monroe and Wilcox counties had not recovered Goodwin's body early Monday. Only fragments of the fiberglass boat have been recovered.

Water Patrolman Joe Ward, who investigated the mishap, said a witness reported seeing Simmons put on a life preserver as the boat drifted into the rough waters immediately below the dam, but Goodwin reportedly was not wearing a life preserver. Simmons was rescued shortly after the boat capsized.

Water safety officials reported this is Alabama's seventh boating fatality since Oct. 1, 1968, the beginning of the state's fiscal year.

Tom G. Shackelford, Chief of the Water Safety Division, cautioned all boaters to heed the warning signs posted above and below hydroelectric dams. Boaters who fail to do so literally take their lives into their own hands, all for a few moments of fishing fun.

"Keep your eye open. Asides, Joe — my kid's collecting 'em."

HOW MUCH DID
A COLOR TV
COST 25 YEARS AGO?

Since it didn't exist 25 years ago there is no fair way to estimate the cost. The same reasoning applies to the cost of today's prescriptions. Most of today's drugs didn't even exist 25 years ago, so they could not be bought at any price. When you consider the lives that have been saved, the rapid cures that have resulted from modern medicines, it's no wonder we say
